FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Jimerson & Cobb, P.A.’s Construction Law Group Welcomes Associate Clayton Osteen

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (August XX, 2017) – Jimerson & Cobb tops off a summer of awards recognizing the firm’s growth with the addition of associate attorney, Clayton T. Osteen, to its construction law practice. Mr. Osteen will also assist in matters of administrative law and licensing, business litigation, condominium law, and creditors rights and commercial collections.

“Clayton’s knowledge of the construction industry and his experience as a construction licensing prosecutor for the DBPR will have an immediate impact in favor of the firm’s clients,” said Christopher Cobb, the firm’s Construction Practice Group leader. “The skill set that he brings is an added layer of depth to the firm’s preeminent construction law practice and will increase the group’s overall capacity.”

Prior to joining Jimerson & Cobb, Mr. Osteen served as the Deputy Chief Attorney for the Department of Business and Professional Regulation and presented cases in front of the Construction Industry Licensing Board, as well as the Electrical Contractors’ Licensing Board. He has extensive experience prosecuting licensing discipline cases and has tried multiple cases at the Division of Administrative Hearings, including a case that resulted in changing regulations to the pool industry.

Mr. Osteen grew up in Oxford, Florida, and attended Florida State University where he earned both his J.D. and a Bachelor of Science degree in business management. While studying for his undergrad, he played defensive end for the Seminoles. During law school, he was a law clerk at the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity. In his downtime, he likes to hunt, fish, travel and play golf.
